Colour harmonies between blue and sand are of eternal popularity and validity. They are reflecting in part the harmony of the four classical elements: earth, water, air (and fire).

The range of blues from light and transparent to dark and opaque corresponds to the qualities of air and water. Be it transparent and nearly invisible or endlessly deep and dark. Blue is the transmitter between the nothing and the big picture, blue is pure spiritualism.

Earth (here as stone and sand) is the basis and foundation for everything. Here we are building our homes and grow our food. Earth is life itself. In the combination of blue and sand we feel at home, protected and well cared. It is the naturalness without words that gives this harmony its power.
